FLOOR DEBATE

April 11, 2002 LB 1085

SENATOR CUDABACK: One minute.

SENATOR BROWN: I have some frustration about the system. We sent the Appropriations Committee, and I was a part of the group that wanted more cuts, knowing full well how painful that was going to be. We sent the Appropriations Committee back to committee. With this, we didn't ever send it back to committee, we just pulled all the Frankenstein pieces together and put it together. And now we're left with something that I can't communicate and so I can't vote to override. And I don't believe that that's fiscally responsible but I don't believe it is politically responsible, and I'm not talking about getting elected politically. I am talking about keeping the people who are part of the process a part of the process so they understand what we are doing. I don't think it's politically responsible to override...

SENATOR CUDABACK: Time.

SENATOR BROWN: ...this bill. Thank you.

SENATOR CUDABACK: Thank you, Senator Brown. The next five to speak are Senators Coordsen, Quandahl, Erdman, Baker, and Kristensen. Senator Coordsen.

SENATOR COORDSEN: Thank you, Mr. President. I don't know who is old enough to remember the old Laugh-In show but Arte Johnson used to put on a German army helmet, look over the wall, and say, very interesting. I am supporting the motion to override the veto. I believe that we have no choice. We have a choice of stonewalling for awhile and then being called back in sometime before the end of this calendar year to make further adjustments. I was listening to several of the previous speakers and thinking that all, all, all of government budgets go to the salaries of people, and government is not a very good generator of wealth. Government and government budgets are magnificent redistributors of wealth by taking money from the pockets of those whose placement in the economy allows them to create wealth from time, from material, from water, from soil, from whatever, from knowledge, from whatever happens to be the profession of the wealth generator. We, in government, are the
